Study and Practice of the Medical Profession.

During this time more than 10,000 cases have been prescribed for.

This Season, entirely New Bath Rooms have been made in the LADIES' DEPARTMENT, equal to one room sixty feet long by sixteen wide, and fitted up in good style. The increase of our business demanded better facilities, and we have spared no pains to meet the necessities and comfort of our guests.

OUR LOCATION

Has ever elicited the admiration of all our visitors and guests. It combines the bold and romantic with the more quiet and gentle phases of Nature. The city and country are at one view represented. The walks in the Ravines and Groves back of the Cure, have been greatly improved this season. There is a New Foot Bridge, spanning a deep Ravine—Paths, with nice Seats for Resting Places, embowered in deep shades for Retreats from the scorching Summer's Sun. We do not pursue the extremes of Hydropathy or of Vegetarianism. We intend the condition of the patient shall indicate the diet and regimen necessary to promote health in each case. We seek, first of all,

HISTORY OF BINGHAMTON.*

BINGHAMTON is the seat of justice for Broome county. It is about equi-distant from the eastern and western boundaries of the State, and not far from seven miles north of the Pennsylvania line. Situated at the junction of the Susquehanna and the Chenango rivers, it was for a long time known simply as Chenango Point. Its present name was given it in honor of WILLIAM BINGHAM, Esq., a native of England, but, at the time, an eminent merchant in Philadelphia. He was the proprietor of a large patent of land lying on both sides of the Susquehanna, and including the site of this beautiful town. With characteristic liberality, he gave not only spacious and appropriate lots for a court house and for public schools, but otherwise contributed largely to the prosperity and growth of the village.

The site of Binghamton presents one of the most picturesque and beautiful landscapes that can easily be imagined. It is a slightly undulating plain, cut by the Susquehanna, running from east to west, and the Chenango, running from north to south, the latter entering the former at nearly right angles; and almost completely surrounded by high hills, which, though not lofty enough to make them sublime, add greatly to the general attractiveness of the scene. Their easy slope, their rich foliage, and their embossed surface, ornamented here and there by the hand of cultivation, coupled with the beautiful intervening savanna, which is laved by the aforesaid ever-running streams, form, taken altogether, a picture of which the eye never gets weary.

Binghamton claims no higher antiquity than the period of the Revolutionary war. That it was from time immemorial frequently visited by the aboriginal tribes, and perhaps occupied by them somewhat permanently, especially when they came here upon hunting and fishing excursions, there seems little reason to doubt. But it is not known that white people ever lived here till after General Sullivan marched his army through this part of the State, in his expedition against the still more western savages in 1779. Upon the very site of our town—so says tradition—a brigade of troops, under General James Clinton, father of our own DE WITT CLINTON, on their way to join General Sullivan, encamped two nights. Thus our very soil has been hallowed by Revolutionary feet.

Very soon after this, however, our place began to be settled. The first essay at a village was made, probably, in 1784, about one mile above the centre of our present town, on the west side of the Chenango, and a little north of the point where Mount Prospect juts down nearly to the river. Several persons, not wholly unknown to fame, erected houses there; and, ere the spot was abandoned, it displayed quite an array of buildings—buildings of various grades, and used for various purposes.

As an inland town, Binghamton has admirable commercial facilities. Being near the centre of the New York and Erie road, it communicates alike with the east and “the great west.” By means of the Chenango canal and the Syracuse and Binghamton railroad, its intercourse with the north is direct and ample, while to the south the Lackawanna railroad gives easy access to the Wyoming Valley and the rich coal regions of Northern Pennsylvania. Soon, if present prospects are realized, it will communicate with the east in general, and the capital of the State in particular, through the Albany and Susquehanna railroad. It is, in an important sense, the Emporium of the Upper Susquehanna Valley, and is destined to be, though its growth may continue to be gradual, a considerable inland city.

The first legislative charter was given to Binghamton April 2, 1813. By a subsequent act, passed May 3, 1834, not only were its boundaries enlarged, but its territory was divided into five wards. The project of a city charter has been repeatedly discussed, but, though both its population and its business might justly entitle it to such a distinction, it has hitherto been supposed that the increased expense of government under such a charter would be more than a counter balance to any probable advantage.

Hence, the place has been content to wear its more humble title.

Though not particularly distinguished for her manufacturing establishments, Binghamton has, nevertheless, a respectable number of them. Here are flouring mills, saw mills, planing mills, sash factories, soap and candle factories, and the like.

In all that constitutes an eligible location, Binghamton may safely challenge a comparison with any other interior town in the whole nation. If there be any other place superior to it, the writer knows not where to look for the enviable spot. In salubrity of climate, certainly, it has no superior. This is not presumptuous—it is the dictate of experience. Of this fact its sanitary statistics furnish the most conclusive evidence. The position is true of the whole county, and especially true of Binghamton. Here the local facts are all favorable to health, and such a thing as cholera or yellow fever, or other desolating epidemic, was never experienced. A safer retreat for the valetudinarian could perhaps scarcely be found.

HISTORY OF ELMIRA.*

The village of Elmira, (by its original name of Newtown or Newtown Point,) was first laid out on a lot of land granted to Jeffrey Wisner, on Newtown Creek, where the first buildings were erected about the year 1790, on what is now known as Sullivan street.

In December 1794, Guy Maxwell, then of Tioga Point, and Samuel Hepburn, of Milton, Pennsylvania, purchased of Thomas White, Lot No. 1 of Great Lot No. 195, containing one hundred acres, for the sum of five hundred pounds, or $12.50 per acre; and laid out a town plot on the river bank, the site of the present village. The plot was called De Wittsburgh, on the map and in the conveyances. At the same time Henry Wisner, Esquire, of Warwick, Orange county, who owned lot No. 196, west of De Witt's patent, laid out his town plot, which was called Wisnerburgh. The dividing line between their patents was a little west of the street now called Baldwin street. These names, however, were not generally adopted, but the village continued to be called Newtown, until the name of the town was changed by the Legislature to Elmira, in 1811. The village had been incorporated by the name of Newtown, in March 1815, and a subsequent act, April 21, 1828, changed it to Elmira.

The town of Newtown was erected April 10, 1792, it having previously been within the limits of the town of Chemung. Catharine was taken from Elmira in 1798; Big Flatts and Southport in 1822, and Horseheads in 1854. The village is handsomely situated on the north bank of the Chemung, now divided into the first and second wards; and recently a third ward on the south side of the river, in the town of Southport, has been included within its corporate bounds. Upon a high hill west of the village, called Fort Hill, is the remains of an ancient fortification, protected on the northerly side by the river at the base of the hill, and on the southerly side by a deep ravine, through which passes a stream falling into the river. An embankment two hundred feet long and fourteen feet wide and three and a half feet high still extends along the rear of the fortifications on the west, and upon it grew large trees when the whites first occupied the country. Colonel Hendy, one of the earliest settlers, frequently stated that he had inquired of the older Indians, then in the neighborhood, as to the object of this embankment, and by whom erected; but they could give no information on the subject, nor did they have any tradition in reference to it.

The first settlers of the Chemung and Susquehanna valleys were composed of emigrants from Orange county, and the counties of Northampton in Pennsylvania, and Sussex in New Jersey, on either side of the Delaware river, together with many families who had originally settled near Wyoming, in Pennsylvania, under the Connecticut title, who had been driven from their settlements by the authorities of Pennsylvania, who asserted the prior and better claim of William Penn to the territory in controversy, as they alleged. Those from the Delaware frontier had been engaged in controversies with the Indians in their irruptions into the frontier settlements during the Revolutionary War, and very many of them had accompanied the expedition of General Sullivan into the Indian country in 1779, thus becoming acquainted with those rich valleys.

They were men of great energy, perseverance and far-seeing sagacity; there were no pigmies among them; they were stalwart men, and it might well be said, as of the men of old, "there were giants in those days." The settlement commenced in 1788, and the greater portion of the pioneers were here as early as 1790. Very few of us in this age of luxury and refinement can appreciate the toils and sufferings of these hardy pioneers, or what they gave up in leaving the old settlements from which they emigrated, surrounded by every earthly comfort, where schools were abundant, and the sound of the "church going bell" familiar to the ear, to face the privations to which they were subjected in forming a new settlement in a wilderness inhabited by the wild beasts of the forest, or the more terrible red man of the woods.

HISTORY OF ITHACA.

ITHACA township was formed from Ulysses March 16th, 1821. It is the central town in the county, lying at the head of Cayuga lake,—a tract of land two miles long and one and one half broad, low and nearly level; extends south from the lake shore.

Ithaca, the county seat, is situated one and a half miles south of the head of Cayuga lake, and is the commercial centre of the county. It is beautifully situated upon a fine plain, bordered on three sides by lofty hills, and on the fourth by the lake, with which it is connected by a navigable inlet. A daily line of steamboats on the lake, running between this place and Cayuga Bridge in connection with the Cayuga and Susquehanna railroad, connects the Erie railroad on the south with the New York Central on the north. The lake is also a link in the great chain of the internal water navigation of the State, and upon it a large amount of canal commerce, centring at Ithaca, is carried on. The village was incorporated April 2d, 1821. The first settlement of the town was made by Jacob Yaple, Isaac Dumond and Peter Hinepaw, who located on the present site of Ithaca village, in 1789.

The land that they occupied had previously been partially cultivated by the Indians. The first church, (Presbyterian,) was organized in 1804-5, with seven members. Among the other early settlers were the families of McDowel, Davenport, Bloom, King, Patchin, Star, Markle, Sayers, Conrad and Brink. A man by the name of Lightfoot brought a boat load of goods up the lake in 1792, and continued trade for several years. The first regular store was opened by David Quigg. The first mill was built by Jacob Yaple in 1790. The first families were a month getting from Kingston, Ulster county, to Owego, and nineteen days from there to their destination.

HISTORY OF OWEGO.

The township of Owego was organized February 16, 1791. Spencer was taken off in 1806. It is a large town occupying the south east corner of the county. Owego creek flowing through the broad and beautiful valley forms the west boundary of the town north of the Susquehanna. Owego, the county seat, was incorporated April 4th, 1827. It is the commercial centre of a large agricultural and lumbering district, and since its first settlement has been one of the most important villages in the southern tier of counties.

John McQuigg and James McMaster, from New England, the original patentees of the half township on which the village of Owego stands, settled there in 1788. A clearing was made and grain sowed in 1786, by William McMaster, William Taylor, Robert McMaster, John Nealy and William Wood, who entered the valley from the east by the way of Otsego lake and the Susquehanna.

The following is the substance of a statement appropriate to this branch of our subject, made by William Taylor, who died at Candor, Tioga county, in 1849, at the age of eighty-two years. He accompanied McMaster to this place in the year 1785, in the capacity of a bound boy; in April, 1785, he started for Owego in company with the above named persons; the winter previous a boat had been obtained at Schenectady, and taken from there to Canajoharie on the ice, and from that point brought upon a sleigh to the bank of Otsego lake; when the company reached the lake, the boat was launched, and a portion of them embarked—with a wagon, provisions, plows; farming implements and cooking utensils—while another party went with four horses, by land, upon the Indian trail to the foot of the lake, where the parties met by appointment, encamping for the night upon the site of Cooperstown, at which place they found but one log house. In that order the company moved on down to Owego, finding no other evidences of pioneer settlement, except two log houses at Unadilla. At night the boat was moored uniformly at some place on the river previously agreed upon, and thus the whole party, as well for safety as for comfort, took their evening meals and spent their nights together.

Upon the first of May, fourteen days from the time of starting, the two parties, by the boat and by land, came together at the mouth of the Owego creek, their place of destination.

A cabin was hastily put up of pitch pine logs, upon the flat, about fifty rods above where the flouring mill at Canewana now stands. It sheltered the party until their corn planting was done. A few furrows were at first plowed at right angles with the main highway through Canewana, but upon exploring above they found a dryer soil and better plowing, upon the homestead farm of George Talcott, there they planted ten acres to corn.

After planting, a more substantial log house was erected near the bank of the river, which was the first building erected for permanent use by the hands of white men in this portion of the valley. At the proper season the corn was thoroughly hoed ; the whole party returning soon afterwards to the Mohawk for the purpose of attending to their harvesting in that vicinity, taking back with them three of their horses and a quantity of beaver skins which they had received from the natives in exchange for a horse sold them. They carried back with them a plow share, as far as Unadilla, about sixty miles, for the purpose of having it left there and sharpened, for use in the fall. Their harvesting on the Mohawk having been finished, they returned to Owego to secure here the fruits of their enterprise and toil. At the proper time the corn was gathered and taken by boat loads to Tioga Point, and securely cribbed, when the party set out for their winter quarters on the Mohawk. The narrator, William Taylor, did not return to Owego until the spring of 1793, when he became a permanent resident. But during the interval of his departure, in the fall of 1785, and his subsequent return, several persons had made settlements here with their families.

Among others was Amos Draper; his was the first white family resident of Owego,, their settlement here dating in the spring of 1788, a few weeks previous to the arrival of the family of James McMaster from the Mohawk. Mr. Draper's family came from Kingston, Pennsylvania, in the fall of 1787, and passing over the site of Owego, settled at first in Nanticoke, but in the spring moved to Owego, and commenced living in the house which had been built near the bank of the river, in the lower part of the village in 1785, by the party from the Mohawk. The first white child, born in the town of Owego, and doubtless the first within the present limits of Tioga county, was SELECTA, daughter of Mr. Amos Draper—the date of her birth was June 19, 1788. The families of James McMaster and John McQuigg settled in Owego the same year, (1788,) but a few weeks after the family of Mr. Draper. The family of James McMaster lived, when they settled in Owego, in a house a few rods from the river, near where the main highway now running along the river bank intersected the Cayuga lake trail; which ran direct to the river. The family of John McQuigg came from Massachusetts, and entered the valley by the way of the Otsego lake, following the usual Indian trail to this point.

Owego, an Indian name, has had several pronunciations; by one tribe pronounced Ah-wah-gah—accent on the second syllable. Upon Guy Johnson's map, (1771,) it is written O-we-gy; it is also so written in the map accompanying the treaty of 1768 at Fort Stanwix, but in the deed of cession, drawn at the same time, it is spelled Os-we-gy, showing conclusive inaccuracy probably in both our early settlers. It was pronounced O-wa-ga—a pronounced as in fate.

Mrs. Whitaker, who was acquainted with this point during her captivity, and became a resident in this vicinity previous to or about the time of the extinguishment of the Indian claim, has given it as above, and probably the most nearly correct—its signification "Where the Valley widens"—the narrows below and above upon the river, and also upon the creek, about two miles from its mouth, to which this name was also given, render that meaning peculiarly significant, as applied to this extended valley or basin, the outlet to which on all sides is through narrow gorges or passes.

GLEN MARY, for several years the residence of N. P. Willis, is situated on Owego creek, near the west bounds of the village. It was here that his exquisite "Rural Letters" were written.

We are indebted to "Sketches of the Susquehanna Valley," written by C. P. Avery, Esquire, and published in the "St. Nicholas Magazine," in 1853, for much of the above historical matter.
