INTRODUCTORY.

WE will briefly and respectfully state, upon presenting this work to the public, that it has been our special aim to issue a really valuable and meritorious Directory. A work of this character never was, nor ever will be, perfect. It is almost a matter of impossibility—considering the general sources of gathering material, the changes actually going on during the compilation, and the thousands of names to be handled by the several departments—to prevent some errors occurring in a work of this character; and a just and appreciative public should not criticize too severely. None but those experienced can conceive the extent of difficulties pertaining to directory material and work. Appreciating and viewing all these facts in the right direction, we engaged persons of well known intelligence and ability, and who had a thorough knowledge of our city generally, to canvass for the work.

Giving all the above points a due consideration, we feel safe in making the statement that this, our “first fruit,” will pass favorably the severe inspection which it will be subjected to.

It is our aim to retain and hold a permanent “Directory Publishing House,” and to enable us to accomplish what we desire, we shall spare no expense, time or trouble to bring into requisition every effort bearing favorably upon the enterprise.

We thank the “press” for their valuable (?) support, the public for courtesies extended, and our friends for their liberal patronage.

Respectfully,

NORTON & CONKLIN.

To tell what an article should retail for to make a profit of 20 per cent.:

RULE.—Divide what the articles cost per dozen by 10, which is done by removing the decimal point one place to the left.

To mark an article at any per cent profit, we have the following general rule:

First find 20 per cent. profit, by removing the decimal point one place to the left on the price the articles cost a dozen; then, as 20 per cent profit is 120 per cent., add to or subtract from this amount the fractional part that the required per cent. added to 100 is more or less than 120.

To measure inch boards:

RULE.—Multiply the length of the board in feet by its breadth in inches, and divide the product by 12; the quotient is the contents in square feet.

Note.—When the board is wider at one end than the other, add the width of the two ends together, and take half the sum for a mean width.

To ascertain the contents (board measure) of boards, scantling or plank:

RULE. Multiply the width in inches by the thickness in inches, and that product by the length in feet, which last product divide by 12.

To measure round timber:

RULE.—Take the girth in feet, at both the large and small ends, add them, and divide their sum by two for the mean girth; then multiply the length in feet by the square of one-fourth of the mean girth, and the quotient will be the contents in cubic feet, according to the common practice.

To measure square timber:

RULE.—Multiply the breadth in feet by the depth in feet, and that by the length in feet, and the quotient will be the contents in cubic feet.

To measure the bushels of grain in a granary:

RULE.—Multiply the length in feet by the breadth in feet, and that again by the depth in feet, and that again by 4-5. The last product will be the number of bushels the granary contains.

MEASUREMENT OF HAY.—As nearly as can be ascertained, 25 cubic yards of average meadow hay, in windrows, make a ton. When loaded on wagons, or stored in barns, 20 cubic yards make a ton. When well settled in mows, or stacks, 15 cubic yards make a ton.
