Blazing A NEW TRAIL in Feed Service

POULTRYMEN and Dairymen got more productive rations when we started in the feed business back in 1918. Because we laid down the strict rule that every ingredient used in Beacon Rations must be first quality, must contribute a distinct advantage to the feeding value. That all ingredients must be carefully blended according to the latest scientific research and the soundest feeding experience.

Throughout the 18 years since that policy was adopted, Beacon has blazed its new trail along the same line. We have refused to give a single inch. Quality has never been lowered to meet price.

Thousands of Poultrymen and Dairymen in the Northeastern States have proved to their own complete satisfaction that Beacon Rations not only give top production, but are really the cheapest in the end, judged on the basis of results.

We make a complete line of feeds for poultry, cattle, horses, hogs, game birds, rabbits and dogs. The whole Beacon feed story can be had by calling on any one of our dealers or by writing us for free bulletins.

MEMBERS OF BUILDING SUPPLY FIRM, WHIPPLE BROS., INC.

Since its inception in 1904, the State College of Agriculture has come to be regarded by rural New Yorkers as the final authority in handling the problems that attend the consistently profitable operation of their farms.

Too much credit cannot be given this splendid institution for its tireless research and painstaking analysis of the manifold means by which the rich agricultural resources of the State may be conserved and their benefits multiplied.

In a category like to the State College of Agriculture do farsighted farmers in Tompkins County place Whipple Brothers, Inc., as their source of building supplies. Dairymen and growers alike have found in these friendly dealers and their service the answer to their need for long-range, economical practice as applied to construction and maintenance of their buildings.

This admirable dealer-consumer relationship is the natural outgrowth of a policy astonishing in its simplicity, yet depending on eternal vigilance on the part of the lumbermen. Established in 1894, Whipple Brothers determined to base their business upon giving the greatest possible value for every price set on their merchandise.

The wisdom of this principle has been confirmed beyond question through its enthusiastic reception by Whipple customers. Year in, year out, whether during periods of general prosperity or when economic trends veered downward, purchasers of building materials have exhibited ever-increasing confidence in the Whipple valuing-policy.

Asked how this fundamental principle operates, Mr. Benton H. Whipple, sales manager, explained: "The savings we offer our customers originate at the very point where the raw materials are manufactured. We buy from mills and factories located in whatever parts of the country are most favorable for economical production and shipping. We order by the carload, taking advantage of quantity costs and lowest freight rates.

"Still watchful for expensive corners to cut, we make many items at our own mills and control the distribution of stocks to our nine big yards so that many wasteful processes, considered necessary by some retailers, are eliminated.

"We buy for cash, sell for cash, and thereby reduce bookkeeping to a minimum. All along the line, wherever we can save money without sacrificing quality or service, we do so. Then, too, we watch our prices so that every economy we make is offered without delay to our customers. The story sounds simple, but we have to keep on our toes every moment in order to make it work out."

Besides the yard at Groton, serving Tompkins County, Whipple Brothers, Inc., operate other retail outlets at Binghamton, Endwell and Elmira, New York; and at Scranton, Clarks Summit, Kingston, Laceyville (main yard and mills), and Athens, Pa.

The Groton branch was established in 1930 on the site of the old road machinery works. In July, 1935, the floodwaters did extensive damage to heavy stocks at the height of the season, but business proceeded as usual after the swollen creek nearby had subsided. The yard is managed by Mr. Gerald Miller, a native of Groton and a Whipple representative practicing Whipple friendly service and courtesy.

Modern Paint System Keeps Colors "Fresh"

With the introduction of "ready-mixed" paint a generation or so back, paint-users learned to expect a hard residue of pigment settled in the bottom of each can they bought. Many refused to give up their preference for "mixing their own," even though it meant tedious breaking-up of soggy white lead and long periods of stirring to the required consistency. At least, when paints were mixed on the job, colors were fresh, pure and brilliant, but uniform shades were hard to obtain because accurate proportions were difficult to duplicate.

Eventually, the natural consequence of this situation was the evolution of the MONAD "Col-O-Jar" system, by which the coloring pigments are kept separate from the paint. Thus one needs no longer to risk the damaging effects of chemical reaction within the paint mixture during storage. No longer is it necessary for dealers, wholesalers and manufacturers to carry large stocks of factory-colored paints, holding them indefinitely in order to be ready for chance demand.

The MONAD factory, mixing paint and color separately, ships direct to dealers, who, like the makers, keep only a moderate reserve quantity in convenient can sizes, turning over their stocks several times a year. In this way every purchaser of MONAD fresh finishes gets just the color he wants, without delay, and gets it while it is still entirely soft and fluid, soon after it leaves the grinding mills.

Customers of Whipple Brothers, Inc., lumber yard at Groton, are invited to include MONAD Paint in their orders for building supplies.

GROTON

Groton, the center of a farming and industrial community in the Owasco Valley, is a village of approximately 2000 population. It received its name in 1818 at the request of citizens who had come from Groton, Mass., and Groton, Conn. It is the home of the Corona Portable Typewriter, has an excellent school system; a weekly newspaper; enjoys modern facilities; and represents an important trading center for a large area.

Plain Common Sense

"When I can't pay in full, I'll go to my creditors and explain, pay what I can, and make arrangements about the balance due them. I'll NOT avoid them!"

"Then I'll give them the benefit of my cash business. They are entitled to this consideration. I'll be fair. It pays!"
